

#FacesOfAgriculture

Searching for your happy place? Ashley Branoff will help you grow it. 🌱

Ashley, the owner of The Plant Spot, is encouraging Farm Show visitors to cultivate their own happy place by finding plants they love and are passionate about.

The Plant Spot is a local, family-owned small business from Carlisle, PA, that recently opened its doors. As a first-time vendor at the 2025 Pennsylvania Farm Show, Ashley is thrilled to showcase her business in the Main Hall and connect with visitors. She shares, “We absolutely love plants and believe in growing your own happy place!”

When asked for advice for aspiring plant owners, Ashley recommends: “Start small. Don’t go and buy a whole bunch of plants at once. Determine which species is your favorite and then continue in that area. Stick to that species until you get the hang of it, then add another species when you feel comfortable.”

At the Farm Show, we’re proud to support Pennsylvania’s small businesses, and Ashley’s passion for plants is a perfect example of how local entrepreneurs are powering PA. It’s also the perfect opportunity to pick up an adorable houseplant that, with a little love and care, will thrive and bring joy to your home. 🌱

Find the Plant Spot in the Main Hall of the PA Farm Show.